1 Using the web as a collaborative tool
Sharon Paranto
October 2002 Journal of Computing Sciences in Colleges, Volume 18 Issue 1

Publisher: Consortium for Computing Sciences in Colleges
Full text available: 📄 pdf(40.62 KB)   Additional Information: full citation, abstract, references, index terms

This paper describes how the Internet was used as a collaborative tool in a "real-world" website development project, a group project assigned to students taking an Advanced Computer Applications course. Students worked collaboratively in small groups and coordinated with area businesses, both in person and online, to develop interactive websites for the businesses. The ability to temporarily publish the websites to the university's E-learning server meant that students could work on the project ...

2 Integrating tools and tasks: Taking email to task: the design and evaluation of a task management centered email tool
Victoria Bellotti, Nicolas Ducheneaut, Mark Howard, Ian Smith
April 2003 Proceedings of the SIGCHI conference on Human factors in computing systems
Publisher: ACM Press

Email has come to play a central role in task management, yet email tool features have remained relatively static in recent years, lagging behind users? evolving practices. The Taskmaster system narrows this gap by recasting email as task management and embedding task-centric resources directly in the client. In this paper, we describe the field research that inspired Taskmaster and the principles behind its design. We then describe how user studies conducted with ?live? email data over a two-we ...
